A. Introduction

The Author considers himself extremely fortunate to be a student at the University of Greenwich. We not only learn specialized programs but also learn communication skills and many other important and necessary skills in life. The author will explain group dynamics, the importance of PDP, and the goal of developing a personal plan and setting goals to achieve it in this report.

B. Discuss the importance of team dynamics in the success and/or failure of group work (P5)

I. Definition of team dynamics

People often take on distinct roles and behaviours when they work in a group. Team dynamics are the unconscious, psychological forces that shape a team's behavior and performance. They are similar to undercurrents in the sea, which can carry boats in directions other than the one in which they intend to sail. Team dynamics can be good (for example: when they improve overall team performance or get the best out of individual team members). And they can also be bad (for example, when they cause unproductive conflict, demotivation, and prevent the team from achieving its goals). (Myers, 2022)

II. The importance of team dynamics in the success and/or failure of group work.

Team dynamics are super important to the success of every company and every project. In fact, you can make the case that team dynamics are the most important aspect of managing a success project, whether you are using standard project management, agile, lean, or any one of a variety of these methodologies. Yes, they can be quite complicated, but they can be learned. Here at RMC, we've taught thousands of students these project management methodologies for many years. (Mulcahy, 2016)

III. In my group

A group of authors assigned to give training presentations on any topic. The group of authors chose the topic Skills workshop for staff members planning. This topic is not unfamiliar to anyone, but it is also quite important in equipping knowledge for newcomers.

Trinh Duc Anh is initiator/contributor. He always gathers everyone's thoughts before coming up with a solution. He also actively came up with ideas for the entire group, which pleased us all because they were both logical and creative.

Nguyen Van Hoa and Nguyen The Vinh are very quiet people but they still complete their work on time without anyone's help.

Nguyen Duc Anh is information seeker. He is very responsible in his work and always ask people if this place is a good fit for the training session. He searched and surveyed the prices himself to have a memorable training session.

C. Work within a team to achieve a defined goal (P6)

I. Introduction of my group work

The author group consists of five members, and the group's work is skills workshop for staff members planning. The audience consists of company employees, and the training session teaches employees about staff planning. Time: 2 days are February 7-8, 2022. The training starts at 8:30 and ends at 16:30. The training took place on floor 34, building 34T, Hoang Dao Thuy street, China ward, Cau Giay district, Hanoi. The total damage for 2 training sessions is approximately 120 million VND.

II. My role in the group work

In the group, the author is tasked with studying the gantt chart and providing feedback once everyone has finished their assigned work. The author has completed the assigned task successfully.

III. Result of group work

Teachers and readers praised the author's project and which it met the group's expectations and efforts. The author is very satisfied with the results that the author and the team have created together.

D. Discuss the importance of PDP and its contribution to own learning (P7)

I. Definition of PDP

The personal development plan is about investing in the most critical resource, and that is yourself so that you can manage life in the best possible manner irrespective of obstacles and hurdles along the way. It is a comprehensive strategy that allows the planner to be proactive and instead of waiting for things to happen, he takes the initiative by himself so that he can make them happen. (Bhasin, 2019)

II. Why PDP importance

Not only can it help drive motivation to achieve your goals, but it can help a lot of people bring their vision into a reality. Some people know exactly what they want in a career and in life, others simply do not. Those that have less guidance to where they want to be can sometimes feel lost and forget the things they have already managed to achieve. When you lose sight, it can help lead you back to where you want to be.

It's not meant to be used just to highlight your achievements though, make sure to make a note of the things you may have failed at. Because sometimes, nothing drives a person more than failure.

It also helps your employer see where you want to be. If you start in a role with a company and they know that you want to grow and develop, they might be able to help you. Employers may give you their version of a PDP to help you hit company targets, so let them know about your own goals as well and they may help you incorporate them.

(Rogers, 2021)

III. PDP contribution to own learning

PDP supports the idea that learning is a lifelong and life-wide activity. The process of PDP can strengthen the capacity of learners to reflect upon their own learning and achievement and to plan for their own personal, educational and career development. This is a core learning process, required throughout the education system and in many employment and continuing professional development contexts.(The Open University, 2022)

E. Produce a development plan that outlines responsibilities, performance objectives and required skills, knowledge and learning for own future (P8)
